H. C. MALHOTRA,

Secretary-cum-Engineer-in-Chief.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA
MINISTRY OF IRRIGATION

RESOLUTION

New Delhi, the 26th August, 1981

No. 1(7) 80-PP.—As per present broad assessment, the total ultimate irrigation potential of the country has been estimated as 113 million hectares. It is considered that this can be significantly increased by storing and utilising the surplus waters available in some rivers and transferring them to water deficit regions by interlinking of rivers. In order to achieve this purpose and to meet the persistent demand made in the Parliament and outside to have such a plan, the Ministry of Irrigation and Central Water Commission have formulated the National Perspective for Water Resources Development. The National Perspective has two main components, namely (i) Himalayan Rivers Development and (ii) Peninsular Rivers Development.

2. The Peninsular Rivers Development component of the Perspective can be implemented on our own as the rivers flowing therein are within the country and do not involve any co-operation with or concurrence from the neighbouring countries. It has, therefore, been decided to take up detailed surveys and investigations of the possible storage reservoir sites as well as inter-connecting links and to prepare feasibility reports of this proposal. To avoid delay and to get the fullest co-operation from the various States, it has been found necessary to get this work done by the Central Government. For this purpose it has been decided to set up an independent organisation to be called "National Water Development Agency" (Rashtriya Jal Vikas Abhikaran) to be registered as a Society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 with Headquarters at New Delhi.

3. The Society will have the Union Minister for Irrigation as its President and the Union Minister of State for Irrigation as its Vice-President. A Member from the Planning Commission, Chief Ministers/Ministers in charge of Irrigation of the States of Andhra Pradesh, Gujarat, Karnataka, Kerala, Madhya Pradesh, Maharashtra, Orissa, Rajasthan, Tamil Nadu and Uttar Pradesh, Lt. Governor/Minister in-charge of Irrigation of the Union territories of Goa, Daman and Diu and Pondicherry, Secretaries of the Union Ministries of Agriculture (Department of Agriculture), Irrigation, Energy (Department of Power), Civil Aviation, Finance (Department of Expenditure), Planning Commission, and Department of Environment, Director-Generals of the Geological Survey of India and the Survey of India, Chairman of the Central Water Commission, Central Electricity Authority and Central Ground Water Board, Members of CWC in charge of Water Resources and Designs and Research, Director-General, Indian Meteorological Department and Director, National Remote Sensing Agency will be founder Members of the Society. The Director-General, National Water Development Agency will be the Member-Secretary.

4. The function of the National Water Development Agency are as below:—

- (a) To carry out detailed surveys and investigations of the possible storage reservoir sites and inter-connecting links in order to establish feasibility of the proposals of Peninsular Rivers Development forming part of the National Perspective for Water Resources Development prepared by the Ministry of Irrigation and the Central Water Commission.
- (b) To carry out detailed studies about the quantum of water which is surplus in various Peninsular Rivers Systems and which can be transferred to other basins/States after meeting reasonable needs of basin States in the foreseeable future.
- (c) To prepare feasibility reports of various components of the schemes relating to Peninsular Rivers Development.
- (d) To do all such other things the Society may consider necessary, incidental, supplementary or conducive to the attainment of above objectives.
